100% EMPLOYEE-OWNED

Established in 1986; we operate with an independent business philosophy and structure.

What is OCIO?

Investment outsourcing is when fiduciaries delegate the portfolio construction, implementation, manager selection, and day-to-day management to an external team of qualified investment professionals. The client retains control of the investment policy, which contains the risk tolerances and return objective.

OCIO is a growing strategy

Outsourced Chief Investment Officer (“OCIO”) services have grown in popularity over the last several years.

We believe there are compelling reasons for some clients to seriously consider changing their governance model from Non-discretionary to OCIO.

At Verus, the same research and personnel implement our non-discretionary and OCIO services.

Therefore, the decision to implement OCIO is more of a governance decision and should be made by the trustees based upon their own needs and objectives.

Why OCIO?

Each of these value propositions should contribute to a better outcome over time.

- Improved governance
- Sharpened time on target
- Boosted fiduciary protection
- Timely decision making
- Better economies through scale
- Advantageous management of managers
- Enhanced operational efficiency
- More effective risk management

Why Verus?

The Verus way goes beyond mere acceptance of delegated duties, but aims for client success through enhanced returns, operational efficiency, and higher standards of oversight of your investment program.

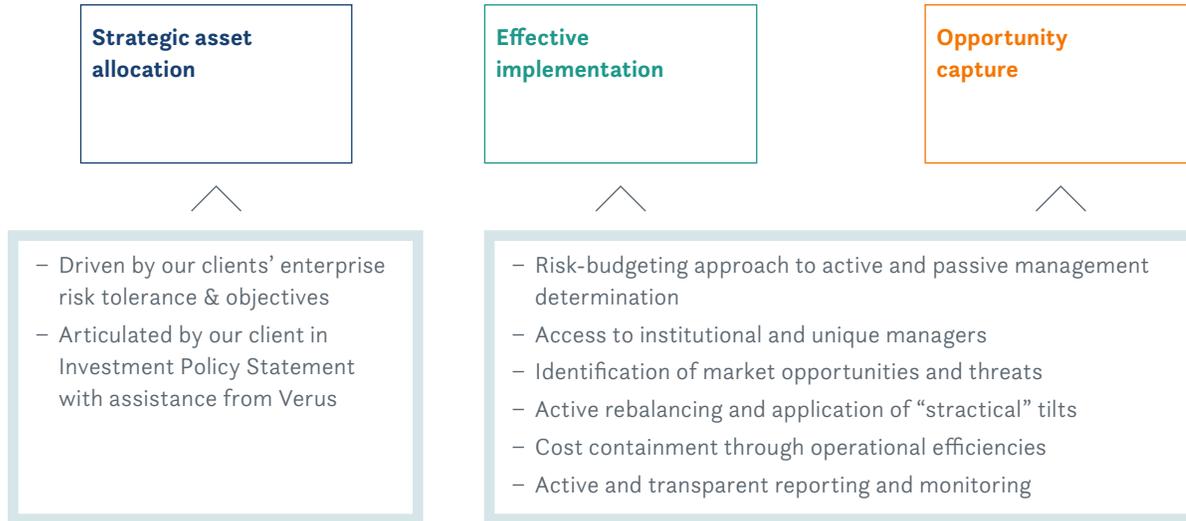

- Investment-led organization for over 30 years
- Working with an experienced consultant that has dedicated their career to building total portfolio structure
- Custom, not model, portfolios

Includes Verus' total assets under advisement; preliminary as of 10/1/2019.*

The Verus way

Every provider delivers OCIO services differently. The Verus way highlights flexibility, return generation guided by risk management, and leading-edge tools that help us understand – and exploit – what drives returns in portfolios.
