

VERUS ADDS ANNIE TAYLOR AND ANNE WESTREICH TO ITS MANAGEMENT COMMITTEE

---

SEATTLE, WA – December 7, 2021 – Verus, a leading investment consulting and OCIO provider, today announced the addition of Annie Taylor and Anne Westreich, both managing directors and senior consultants, to its Management Committee.

In announcing the appointments, Jeffrey MacLean, the chief executive officer of Verus noted, “Annie and Anne are both consummate investment consulting professionals who are highly-regarded in the industry for their insightful counsel and dedication to their clients. We are delighted that they have agreed to take on this added responsibility within the firm.”

Taylor joined Verus in 2003 as a performance analyst. She has focused her career in serving Taft-Hartley clients developing an outstanding reputation within the industry. Taylor leads the firm’s Taft-Hartley sector team and serves on the firm’s Outsourced Chief Investment Officer (OCIO) Committee and has been instrumental in growing the OCIO practice.

Westreich joined Verus in 2006 as a consultant serving mostly the not-for-profit sector. Her institutional investment management experience, analytical skill, and deep knowledge of financial markets are instrumental in helping clients meet the difficult challenges of developing and implementing an effective investment policy. Westreich sits on the Investment Committee and has recently taken on the responsibility to lead Verus’ not-for-profit sector team.

In addition to Taylor and Westreich, the Verus Management Committee includes, Jeffrey MacLean, Shelly Heier, president, Ian Toner, chief investment officer, Scott Whalen, executive managing director, Kraig McCoy, chief financial officer and chief operating officer, Faraz Shooshani, managing director and senior private markets consultant and Mark Brubaker, managing director and senior consultant.
